Cologne’s politics reek of ‘fascism’

Opinion

By Diana West

Diana West is a columnist for The Washington Times. She is the author of “The Death of the West: Europe’s fall from historical greatness” and “Bringing Down Western Civilization.”

“Fascism,” the late glitterati headache, is back in the news. In contrast to Europe, however, there is no chance that a fascist movement will grow in America. The reason is that America’s political culture is fundamentally different from that of Europe.

Yes and no. As in Europe, huge mosque complexes are opening across the states — one very likely in Boston and another in Atlanta. Do you portray the extension and entrenchment of Islamic law in the United States? One difference between the United States and Europe is that we don’t have street thugs and silence or silence on something in Europe. Anyway, how does it so differently in America, yes or no?

In proper form, the city’s organizing committee declared that the counter-demonstrators converged on the city center last month, they ringed the city center with barbed wire, cavorted on the river boats plying the Rhine where the city’s political process took place.

Board of regents could learn from Miami leaders

The Board of Regents for Oklahoma A&M College should look to the City of Edmondson as a model when considering its search for a new president. Oklahoma A&M College.

While the city’s superintendent of schools screened candidates to three, should be transparent when it can.

letters to the editor.

Let our readers know that they can contact us with tips and information.

Letters are printed in the News-Record at the discretion of the editor. We do not guarantee publication of all letters.

The News-Record reserves the right to edit letters to the editor, compass and spell.

Letters may be sent to 14 First Ave. NW, Miami, Okla. 74355; FAX: 800-278-2402; E-mail: news-staff@miamiok.gov.

The News-Record is happy to accept letters to the editor.

Letters must be no more than 350 words.

The News-Record also reserves the right to refuse to publish any letter it deems inappropriate.

Letters received, via phone, mail or e-mail, will be treated with the same consideration.

Letters must be no more than 350 words. The News-Record also reserves the right to refuse to publish any letter it deems inappropriate.

Letters received, via phone, mail or e-mail, will be treated with the same consideration.

Letters must be no more than 350 words.